

Happy New Year and
Welcome to the 2007
Chicago Critical
Mass Calendaur!

If you received this calendaur at your first

Chicago Critical Mass (CCM) ride, welcome to the fold. Critical Mass rides are held on the last Friday of every month in cities all over the world.

Each person has a different reason for participating in Critical Mass. Perhaps the only thing everyone agrees on is that bikes are fun. In addition to the CCM ride, the Chicago area has a Pilsen Mass, Evanston Mass, and Oak Park Mass, so you don't have to wait until the end of the month to go on a Critical Mass ride.

This calendaur is a listing of bike events and resources in the Chicago area.

This is my first year putting together the calendaur and I hope you enjoy it. I first rode Critical Mass in July 2002 and made a goal to ride every CCM for a year. My desire to accomplish that goal led me to Bike Winter events, which allowed me to overcome my fear of riding in the winter. I haven't left my bike parked for more than a weekend since my first Critical Mass ride and am enjoying my 5th winter of cycling thanks to the encouragement and support of people I met through CCM and Bike Winter.

Riding a bike has changed my life and I would like to thank the following people for their part in that change: Al the Pal, Alex Wilson, Bob Kastigar, Bob Matter, Bob Wright, Bob Z., Chopper Bob, Christopher Gagnon, Dan Korn,

Dan Moran, Dave Glowacz, Eric Pancer, Gin Kilgore, Greg Davies, Howard

K., J., Jane Healy, John Stoner, Johnny Payphone, Kathy Schubert, Laila

Korn, Lei Isaacs, Michael Burton, Pippy, Richard Masoner, Ricky R., Sarah

Kaplan, Sean G., T.C., Todd Allen, Todd Gee, T-rat, Travis C., Vic Sholis, and every other rider I know whose name won't quite fit on this page. Ride on!

HALLOWEEN MASS

My wood nymph friend and I (Paris Hilton with a $10 blonde wig) had ridiculous fun riding in Chicago's Halloween Critical Mass. While it's enjoyable to ride on a busy street such as Michigan Avenue, it's also great to ride through neighborhoods that I wouldn't normally bike through on my own. Now that I'm more familiar, I may reconsider!

We were starving, so riding through Chinatown, Pilsen, and Greek Town not only made our hunger unbearable, it also reminded us of our city's wonderful ethnic restaurant offerings.

When people ask you "Where are you going?" the collective response, except from a few in the front, is "We don't know!!!" We were near the back of the pack and really had no clue! And then there's the curious reaction from onlookers. The Halloween ride was my second Critical Mass and you should see some of the folks even when it's not Halloween! I may just wear that blonde wig under my stocking cap for the next one. Overall you just feel like part of a parade.

Critical Mass can be whatever you want it to be. For me it's creative expression, promoting biking as a viable transportation option, and exploring more of the city than my usual radius of activity. And it's just darn fun. Despite Chicago temps, it's year-round on the last Friday of the month. Fellow Chicagoans – hope to see you there!

What will St. Patrick's 2007 bring? Visit rat-patrol.org and chicagofreakbike.org to find out.

St. Patrick's week 2005 included events such as a parade in which beer was guzzled from the Shrine of the Unknown Catholic Schoolgirl and a bonfire rolled down 18th Street; Rat Ride in which C.H.V.N.K. 666 was treated to the sight of the Rat Patrol guzzling syrup from the trash; Build Day in which two lovely ladies caught fire and several pixies were readied for execution; Death Derby in which a dragon, a cyborg, and a superhero entered a fountain from which only one returned; TV Smash in which several televisions were made to pay for their crimes.

St Patrick's week 2006 consisted of an epic ride involving grilled rodents, races against kids, TV smashing machines, and tall bike jousting in a post-apocalyptic wasteland.

St. Patrick was a legendary saint who drove all the snakes from Ireland, leaving the country safe for rats. Every year, a huge parade is held in Chicago to honor the many Irish immigrants who settled here. But how can we forget that other immigrant to North America: the Norway Rat? We celebrate the memory of St. Patrick with a parade of rat bikes.

Happy Hour

The second Friday of every month is the Chicago Critical Mass Happy Hour (CCMHH).

CCMHH is a great opportunity for folks to get together and socialize with other participants of Critical Mass outside of the ride and to meet some of the personalities from the listserv in real life.

It's also a great place and time to make plans for upcoming CCM rides and other bike-related events.

There's lots of great things happening on Fridays and CCMHH is a wonderful way to kick things off.

See you Friday...

Working Bikes is a not-for-profit cooperative which diverts bicycles from the waste stream in Chicago by repairing them for sale and charity. Working Bikes is primarily volunteer-driven. All of its operations are funded through the sale of bicycles at its storefront. Working Bikes uses that money to provide bicycles to charity organizations within Chicagoland and to ship bicycles to the Gulf Coast, Cuba, Guatemala, Ecuador, and many other places of need. In the countries to which Working Bikes ships, a bicycle can often mean the difference between work and unemployment. Here are three ways you can support Working Bikes:

Donate Bikes

Working Bikes needs bicycles, parts, and tools. We accept any style, shape, or condition bicycle.

Purchase Bikes

Buying a bicycle from Working Bikes helps save the planet by keeping the bike out of the landfill and helping fund our program to send bikes to needy areas of the world.

Volunteer

Working Bikes desperately needs volunteers to repair bicycles, prepare and pack bikes for shipping overseas, organize and help customers in the Working Bikes

Store, pick up donations, network with other organizations, and help spread the word.

Visit workingbikes.org for more information.
